Motel maid mauled by guest's pit bull

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A Shoreline Park woman is in stable condition at Hancock General Hospital in Bay St. Louis after being mauled Friday by a bull terrier (pit bull).

The dog attack occurred at Waveland Resort Inn Friday morning when the woman entered a second floor room on the west wing of the building.

Patrolman Chuck James of the Waveland Police Department reported at the incident scene that Helen Massey, 52, of the Shoreline Park area, was attacked by a four or five-year-old bull terrier named Linus at about 9:45 a.m.

James said Massey is employed at the motel as a maid.

Interim Administrator Doris Bates of Hancock General Friday afternoon reported that Massey, of Route 1, Box 120, Bay St. Louis, was in stable condition with multiple dog bites primarily on her right forearm.

"She was treated in the emergency room by Dr. David Byrne, Dr. Sidney Chevis is her physician," Bates added.

The patrolman reported, "Walter Shetler of Cleveland, Ohio had ap-

Engineer claims county sewerage plan cheapest

By BRENT MACEY

Bay St. Louis will be able to join the Waveland Waste Water Authority and meet Environmental Protection Agency standards by 1983 for pollution control at a fraction of the rumored $30 per household cost set for joining the tri-county regional plan.

Ray Eaton of Lewis Eaton Partnership in Jackson and the Waveland Authority's engineer, presented anxiously awaited figures Wednesday night to the authority at a scheduled meeting in Waveland.

Eaton's estimates show household costs ranging between $3.85 to $4.25 more than the current $7 per month sewerage charge for Bay St. Louis householders to join the Waveland Authority.

Eaton said the variation in his estimated price is the result of an option on using primary or secondary treatment methods in the final facility.

The regional plan by CH2M Hill engineers used by the EPA calls for an additional $800,000 cost in the Bay-Waveland area to incorporate a secondary treatment capability into the system.

The Hill plan evolved from an original '201 Plan' drafted by Eaton's firm and Burke and Associates Engineers in the mid-1970's.

Eaton said higher costs in the Hill plan are the result of adding the secondary treatment process which was not figured in 201.

Under the Hill plan, Bay St. Louis households would pay $4.25 above current charges.

Eaton does not know if secondary treatment will be required by the EPA.

"That $800,000 difference will break down to an additional cost of 40 cents per household per month for homes in the Waveland Authority area," the engineer noted.

The question still remains whether federal agencies authorized to assist in the financing of wastewater projects will pay for implementation of any plans other than those already approved by them.

Paul Traina, EPA Region Four director, told The Daily Herald Wednesday any alternative to the Regional Management District would not receive federal funding.

The Regional Program is based in a tri-county system to include Hancock, Harrison and Jackson counties.

Mayor John Longo of Waveland, authority chairman, said in reference to Traina's statement, "We have been threatened and intimidated before. I disagree with the man. Every American citizen and taxpayer has the right to be heard."

He added, "They are trying to use Gestapo tactics. If they made the pollution problem a primary concern instead of making politics their primary concern we could solve the problem."

Longo said he would take their refusal to fund the local program to court if necessary.

NASA CHIEF TO VISIT—Dr. Robert A. Froesch, fifth administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, will visit NSTL Tuesday where he will be honored at a 9:45 a.m. reception. Froesch has announced he will retire as NASA's chief on Jan. 20. "A unique opportunity particularly suited to my interests has arisen and I must take it," Froesch said in a message to NASA personnel. He was appointed by President Carter and took office in June, 1977. A native of New York City, he was previously associate director for applied oceanography at Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution. (Photo courtesy of NSTL)

Eaton's plan for incorporating Bay St. Louis into the Waveland Authority calls for enlarging Waveland's treatment plant to 1.6 million gallons per day (MGD).

Currently the facility handles .533 MGD.

He said parts of the plant were built to a 1.6 MGD when the plant was originally constructed.

He stated upgrading and expanding aerators, clarifiers, digesters, the piping system and related facilities at a cost of $1,281,000 would be required to meet the 1.6 MGD capacity.

Aldermen table contractors' offers

By EDGAR PEREZ

Waveland municipal officials turned a cold shoulder Tuesday to proposals from two contractors who were involved in the controversial tornado repairs at Gulfview Elementary School.

The city's Board of aldermen tabled a proposal from Larry Tully of Long Beach, representing Marine Industrial Residential Insulation, Inc. (MIRI), to sell to the city at cost plus freight materials he had ordered to repair the Waveland Civic Center roof.

Also taken under advisement were bids from Stinson Fence Co. on remodeling of two residences under the Housing and Urban Development Department (HUD)-financed Midtown project.

MIRI repaired the Gulfview roof following a spring tornado last year and Stinson provided fencing on the emergency projects at the school.

Stinson's bids Tuesday along with those of Lad's Construction Co. of Bay St. Louis were referred by the aldermen to Harold Zimmerman, HUD's Midtown Project coordinator, as the bids did not fall within a range pre-established by HUD.

Hancock jail escapee captured in Florida

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Hancock County Jail escapee Reginald Laneaux, 22, 501 Citizen St., Bay St. Louis, is fighting extradition from the Dade County, Fla. jail, according to Hancock Sheriff Ronald Peterson.

Peterson said, "Laneaux was being taken from his jail cell to the sheriff's office to make a telephone call when he broke from the jailer and fled on foot Dec. 15."

"We entered his name with the National Crime Information Center as an escapee from Hancock," the sheriff added.

Laneaux was picked-up for spitting on the sidewalk in Miami, according to Peterson, and when a routine check was made by the Dade County police it was discovered he was wanted in Hancock.

Peterson reports that Laneaux has refused extradition to Hancock County and that the District Attorney's office is now filing the papers for the extradition.

Laneaux was in the Hancock jail after being indicted by a Grand Jury here in connection with a burglary of Lusch's Department Store.

He was awaiting trial, in addition, on charges of carrying a concealed weapon after conviction of a felony.

He is also wanted in Arizona for parole violation, according to Peterson.

"As soon as extradition is granted we will go to Miami to pick him up," Peterson stated.

Gillums experience an unfortunate day

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Friday was an unfortunate day for the Charles Gillum Jr. family of Bay St. Louis.

A fire gutted the kitchen and resulted in heat, smoke and water damage throughout the Gillum's No. 10 Washington St. duplex home at 11:30 a.m. Friday.

Charles Gillum Jr. is street foreman for the City of Bay St. Louis.

At 3:45 p.m. that same day, the Gillum's 16-year-old daughter Barbara was involved in a two-car accident at the corner of US-90 and Longfellow Road.

Investigator Matt Karl of Bay St. Louis Police Department Saturday reported, "Barbara Gillum was treated at Hancock General Hospital for undetermined back injuries and released Friday night."

Fire Chief Andrew Lizana of the Bay St. Louis Fire Department reported at the fire scene, "The blaze was confined to the kitchen area, but smoke and heat damaged the entire interior of the home."

The Gillum's three-bedroom home is owned by the Bay St. Louis Housing Authority.

Housing Authority Executive Director Catherine Wimbish and Manager Carol Morris arrived with maintenance personnel soon after the fire was extinguished, but could not provide a dollar estimate of damage.

Lizana noted, "The building's heavy plaster walls and ceiling saved the entire building from being destroyed."

Airport operator seeks new hangar

By BRENT MACEY

A request to build an additional hangar and ramp at Stennis Industrial airport was presented to the Port and Harbor Commission Thursday night by Andy Ewing, fixed base operator at the airport.

Ewing said the airport 'is out of space' and presented two sites for the board's consideration.

One is located south of the existing hangar and fuel pumps, and the other is located north and west of the present hangar in the area of a wrecked DC4. Ewing said the existing ramp is completely full, containing the maximum of 12 planes tied down.

Ewing proposed a hangar 120 feet wide and 80 feet deep be built at an estimated cost of $100,000.

The proposed southern hangar will need an additional taxi area over 1000 feet long to reach the run-way, Ewing said.

One proposal for the northern location will require a smaller taxi area approximately 500 feet.

The commission discussed the possibility of building a large ramp area bordering the existing ramp, thus eliminating the need for an additional taxi apron.

Ewing said the southern location is designated on a master plan for future development of the facility.

The commission noted the taxi strip would be more costly and require filling because land in that area is low.

The northern hangar area is currently too high and would have to be 'cut down,' Ewing said.

In addition, Ewing asked the commission to grant his firm a 20 year lease on the proposed hangar with two five year options after the 20 year period.

The commission appointed its airport committee to study the proposal.

Committee members include commission members David McDonald, Ronald Artigues, Victor Frankiewicz and H.L. Zengarling.

In other business, the commission tabled a low bid of $147,726 by Big 'M' Construction Company for street paving and water distribution work at Stennis Industrial Airpark Monday after Carter & Mullings, Inc. of Columbia, Mississippi protested the legality of Big 'M's' bidding.

Carter & Mullings bid of $164,440 is the second lowest followed by the high bid of $177,040 by Southland Enterprises, Inc. of Gulfport.

Carter & Mullings protested at the commission's bid opening on Tuesday. They contested Big 'M' Company's certificate of responsibility was limited and did not cover the magnitude of work required for the job.

Leon D. Mitchell, owner of the Big 'M', told the commission at their Thursday meeting his new 1981 license is worded incorrectly.

He said he had spoken with the Board of Public Contractors in Jackson and that the wording would be changed.

"I've been dealing with construction of this size for 25 years," Mitchell said.

"It's a simple matter that the wording be changed. They said they would change it," he said, referring to the board.

The commission moved to wait until Jan. 29, to see if the wording will be changed to make the bid legal.

In further business, the board held a lengthy discussion on whether to grant an easement strip of land to South Mississippi Power Company at the Port Bienville Industrial site for a power line to the Borg-Warner plant.

Wilson Webre, the commission's executive director, said the company is asking for an easement on the southern portion of the property 100 feet wide from Ansley Road to the plant.

He stated the plant must have the line installed by July.

Commission members David McDonald and Victor Frankiewicz, questioned why the company could not run a line along an area adjoining the black top road designated especially for utility easements.

That area is approximately 900 feet north of the requested site.

McDonald said the commission hopes to acquire more land south of its present boundary.

"If we grant an easement where they want it, we will be locking ourselves in," he said.

Frankiewicz agreed, saying "We will be committing valuable pieces of land to rights-of-way."

He added, "If you cut larger pieces of land up, you limit your flexibility. Pretty soon you have unpredictably small ineffective pieces of land which cannot be used."

The commission directed Webre to talk with power company officials and see if the request could be changed to a different location.

Also during the Thursday night meeting, the board reduced the price of damages against Mid-State Coatings from $3,800 to $800.

The company went 38 days over contract time allotted for painting an elevated water tank in the Port Bienville Industrial Park.

Foy Williams, owner of the company, told the board the vinyl paint required for the job was 'very difficult to obtain.'

Of that amount, Waveland will pay $12,250 and Bay St. Louis will pay $308,000. Anticipated federal funds will pay the additional 75 percent of the cost.

Waveland originally paid a total of $168,000 in local funds for construction of the 1.6 MGD portion of the plant and outfall line. Sixty-five percent of that original construction cost, $109,330, must be paid to Waveland by Bay St. Louis.

The 65 percent is the estimated percent of plant usage by Bay St. Louis.

The Bay St. Louis construction costs for enlarging the system plus percentage costs for the initial construction by Waveland total $417,330.

An additional $89,000 operational and maintenance cost for the plant and city sewer lines increase that cost to $506,330.

An anticipated Farmers Homes Administration loan $417,330 at a five percent interest rate over 35 years will cost Bay St. Louis $25,775 a year.

Adding the additional $89,000 operation and maintenance cost increases the figure to $114,000 yearly or $9,565 monthly which breaks down to $3.85 additional monthly sewerage fee per household in Bay St. Louis.

Longo said costs per household must be equal for both cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland.

"We need to sell this program to the public. I do not want to have one penny difference between cities," he stated.

Members of the authority agreed.

Mayor Larry Bennett of Bay St. Louis, Waveland Authority treasurer, said a difference in rates would 'open the door to dissent' by the public.

After hearing the cost presentation, Bennett said he would try to convince the Bay St. Louis City Council to 'change their minds' concerning their recent vote to join the tri-county system.

The council voted 3-2 in favor of supporting the regional plan Dec. 29. Bennett said a petition is already in circulation protesting the council's vote.

That petition needs 1,500 registered voter signatures by Jan. 22 in order to make the decision to join a matter of public vote.

The city council is slated to sign the contract with Gulf Coast Regional Wastewater Authority on Jan. 22.

Williams said he had to go to three different states three different times because the product is 'obsolete' and 'no major paint company keeps the product in stock.'

The board moved to pay a bill of $720 from the $800 received from Williams to Advanced Development Inc.

The company claimed extra engineering costs resulted from the delay in Mid-State Coatings completing the painting.

In further business, the board: —Elected James DeBlanc, board president; Oliver Frierson, vice president; Ronald Artigues, secretary; and David McDonald, treasurer;

—Appointed H.L. (Bully) Zengarling, Harry Baxter, and Oliver Frierson to its railroad committee; —Appointed those three and Victor Frankiewicz to its drainage committee;

—Authorized payment of $6,208 from the Airport Construction Fund to Advanced Development Inc. for engineering work at Stennis Industrial Airpark, contingent on project approval by EDA.

—Authorized payment of $16,075 to Mid-State Coatings for painting the elevated water tank at Port Bienville Industrial site;

—Tabled status reports on a roof and well at Bayou Cadet Marina.

Sports Co-Editor
THE STUDENT PRINTS
The Saint Martin Yellow Jackets Thursday took an early lead against the Bay Senior High Tigers.

The Tigers went into the locker room at halftime six points behind, 15-21.

Any other team might have given up, but the Bay High team that came out for the second half was not the same team that went in.

The Tigers started to come back and moved into a 32-31 lead over the Yellow Jackets.

The Tigers didn't hit as many baskets in the fourth quarter as they did in the third in which they missed only three shots.

The Tigers held off a last minute rally by the Yellow Jackets to take the 43-39 victory over Saint Martin.

The Tigers have compiled a 10-5 season thus far.

Top scorer for the Tigers was Roger (Bird) Woodall with 12 points. Donald (Dr. D.) Acker and Darrell (Goodnight) Robinson each added nine.

TIGERETTES
The Bay Sr. High Tigerettes took an easy victory over the Saint Martin Lady Yellow Jackets.

With good hustle from the opening seconds to the final buzzer, final score was Tigerettes 48, Yellow Jackets 31.

The high scorer for Bay High was Karen Tillman with 17, Barbara Gillum added 12.

Trent Lott— A friend indeed

Mississippi's Fifth District Congressman Trent Lott is deserving of commendation for once again demonstrating he is a man with the courage of his convictions.

His decision last week to hire as a consultant the beleaguered former Republican Rep. Robert E. Bauman of Maryland has come under considerable fire from so-called 'majorities' and others who are quick to condemn when another's decision does not fit their narrow views.

We find it refreshing with the nation moving into a period of almost oppressive conservatism and middle-class conformity that our young congressman retains that strength of character which prompted him to hold out his hand to a fallen colleague even though that decision was bound to draw considerable criticism.

Is this not the same loyal Republican Trent Lott who has been widely lauded lately for his decision in the mid-1970's to stand firmly behind a tottering and eventually fallen Richard Nixon?

That decision also was widely criticized at that time, but is now considered to have been an important factor in his meteoric rise to prominence in the party today.

Lott was also criticized by many early on in the late presidential campaign when he stood firmly in support of a then dark-horse candidate, Ronald Reagan.

Lott's belief in people, although not always in conformity with the majority opinion, seems to be one of his strong points.

Congressman Lott will be at the Hancock County Courthouse at 7 p.m. Wednesday and has extended an invitation to his constituents here to participate in a 'town meeting' at that time and to discuss individual problems on the federal level.

We feel a big turnout here Wednesday night by friends of Trent Lott and citizens of Hancock County will be a big boost to our new Republican Whip of the United States House of Representatives and a demonstration of support he richly deserves.

Parking is a problem at Hancock Hospital

Trying to find a parking space at Hancock General can be a big problem at times.

We have been told by several sources that if the people from the school across the street would not use the parking in front of the hospital things would not be that bad.

If teachers and other people at the elementary school are using the hospital parking, we feel it should cease. The school system should provide ample parking for its employees.

We do not feel, however, that the school is causing the extreme shortage of parking, because even after school is out, it is hard to find parking in front of or on the north side of Hancock General.

In taking a look at the parking at the hospital we have noted some serious problems with the spaces provided, especially on the north side.

It seems that nature is trying to take over the parking spaces and if nature is left alone it will surely take over the entire area.

Some of the wild trees have almost covered the parking area, along the northern side of the hospital.

All it would take would be to have someone cut down the wild trees overtaking the place.

One factor one has to realize, and that is most of the people working at Hancock General are women, and someone could easily hide in the jungle at night.

We hate to see areas completely dominated by parking lots, but if there is a need and property is available, we cannot understand why our Hancock County Board of Supervisors have not provided more parking spaces at the county hospital.

There is an area south and west of the hospital which could be used as a parking area. We wonder why something has not been done in these areas.

Several important factors have caused a parking shortage at the hospital.

There are more doctors on the active staff at Hancock General, which means more patients, more employees, and more servicing agencies.

GOVERNOR AIDS HANICAPPED — After signing a proclamation recently designating January as 'March of Dimes Birth Defects Prevention Month,' Governor William Winter pauses to visit with Amy Shaw, 1981 Mississippi March of Dimes Poster Child. In the coming months, March of Dimes volunteers throughout the state will be organizing campaign activities to raise funds to support the many programs in Mississippi and across the country. The March of Dimes Birth Defects Foundation is the only voluntary health agency fighting to prevent the nation's most serious child health problem - birth defects - and to improve the quality of life for the unborn and the newborn. Each year, over 3,500 babies born in Mississippi are victims of birth defects, with the state leading the nation in the number of infant deaths due to birth defects.

Physicians Detect Many Cancers Early

Every physician's office is a cancer detection center. Most often the doctor finds the cancer when the patient notices that something is wrong and goes in for a checkup.

Sometimes the physician may discover a cancer during a physical checkup for some other cause, or in a routine examination.

By inserting suitable instruments into the various body openings, the physician may be able to see a tumor or sore. If he suspects cancer, he will order further studies. This process is routinely used in examination of the inside of the nose, the vocal cords, the rectum and lower colon, and the vagina and cervix in women. Direct viewing of the bladder also is possible.

By use of the Pap smear, the physician can find cancer cells when they are shed from mucous membrane surfaces. Although mostly used to detect cancers of the uterine cervix in women, the Pap test also is valuable in detecting cancers of the stomach, rectum, lung and urinary tract, says a pamphlet from the American Medical Association.

When a tumor is found, its cancerous nature can be proven by a biopsy. This involves the removal of a small piece of the tumor for examination with a microscope.

Surgical removal of the cancer, destruction of the tumor with radiation, and special drug therapy are primary methods of treatment. Often surgical removal is followed by radiation to destroy any cancer cells that may have strayed from the original location. Radiation therapy may be applied through the use of x-ray machines, radium, radioactive cobalt or other isotopes, or a number of other sources.

A few types of malignancy, such as the leukemias, react quite well to hormones and newly discovered drugs.

The Bottom Line

Candid Answers To Your Questions
About Advertising and Business Topics.

By S. GALE DENLEY

I noted recently that the name of my store is never done the same way. I have one style on my ads (or lately I've had one), another on sales slips, and still others on bags, wrapping paper and letterheads. Shouldn't They All Be The Same?

Dear STARTS: Probably. However, I wouldn't throw away a lot of otherwise perfectly good materials. But you are now aware of the differences and it will continue to bother you more so.

This will especially be true as you begin to take more and more notice of other stores' "logos," and trademarks, and the consistency with which they use them.

Before deciding on a design, however, you should consider all the ways it will be used, and try to see or visualize it in every application.

To be completely consistent, the same design should be used on the front and throughout your store, and possibly on special labels for goods.

Most designers try to get too clever and too complicated, oftentimes at the insistence of the businessman involved.

But a clean, uncluttered and visible logotype (or special design of type) will prove to have more lasting value. And thus hopefully will call for few changes in the future. Even if you do change it, slight alterations will provide transition from one style to another, rather than abrupt, about-faces that would make all other material immediately obsolete.

Plan to get the logo reproduced in a variety of sizes for your ads and other applications. Sometimes it helps to have some with shaded backgrounds and others with shaded letters, as well as solids.

With this kind of emphasis on your name, extra space allocated in newspaper layouts would be most appropriate. Some stores are even consistent in the placement of the logo within the ad layout.

And consistency is the important element. Not only does it look good to you, it also shows others you know what you are doing.

The reaction of customers may not be obvious, but this kind of consistency of effort is something they notice, and generally appreciate. They may not even know why they are impressed, but they will be.

Blindness prevention group eyes jumped battery danger

The failing car battery is a frequent fact of life for American motorists.

Those who attempt to revive these dead batteries using improper jump-start procedures face a serious eye hazard, warns the Mississippi Society to Prevent Blindness.

Just one spark can create an eye-threatening explosion.

Nearly 21,000 injuries from batteries occurred in 1979, 30 percent more than the previous year. Most of the damage involved the eyes.

"These injuries often could be avoided if drivers and service station mechanics jump-starting a car followed proper safety precautions and wore appropriate eye protection," pointed out Art Nabers, safety chairman of the Mississippi Society to Prevent Blindness.

To reduce the risks, the Society has prepared a sticker which gives the advice for jump-starting a car safely. For maximum safety, the society advises everyone working with car batteries or standing nearby to wear protective goggles, available in hardware stores, to keep flying battery fragments and chemicals away from the eyes.

Should battery acid reach the eyes, immediately flush them with water continuously for 15 minutes.

Then seek medical attention without delay.

The recommended jump-starting procedure is listed, step-by-step, on a 4 by 8 inch yellow vinyl sticker with a permanent adhesive.

It can be affixed to any clean, dry surface under the hood or placed in the car's glove compartment.

For a copy of the sticker, send 25 cents and a self-addressed, business-size envelope to the Mississippi Society to Prevent Blindness, 115 Broadmoor Drive, Jackson, MS. 39211.

Discount rates are available on larger orders.

The Mississippi Society, an affiliate of the National Society to Prevent Blindness, is a non-profit, voluntary health agency supported by public contributions.

MISSISSIPPI

NEWS

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of three articles produced by the Mississippi Economic Council reviewing the substantial amount of energy research under way in this state.

With rapidly rising prices of conventional fossil fuels — coal, oil, and natural gas — come the realization by the world's major energy consumers that proven reserves of these fuels are limited and that substitutions for them must be developed.

In the search for primary sources of renewable energy three such sources — alcohol, generated gas, and solar — have received widespread attention by both government and private industry. These energy sources, most experts agree, will not replace fossil fuel use in the foreseeable future but are recognized as viable supplements whose use will decrease demand for conventional fuels.

ALCOHOL METHANE
At the University of Southern Mississippi several research projects are under way utilizing waste materials for the production of alcohol and methane gas through the use of various anaerobic organisms.

Methane gas, for example, can be generated from the digestion of waste material by various microorganisms. Anaerobic organisms are microorganisms which can survive in an oxygen-free environment and by-products of their ingestion of various materials include alcohol and methane gas.

USM researchers believe that microbiology will play a distinct role in the U.S. energy supply picture during the last 10 to 15 years of this century.

Methods such as anaerobic digestion and fermentation have been long understood but the fuels which they generate — alcohol and methane — are only now becoming cost competitive.

At USM, the kitchen and paper wastes generated by a five-person household are being examined as possible materials for the growth of methane-producing bacteria. Vegetable wastes, normally discarded, are ground and digested by these odoriferous bacteria. The purpose of this study is to increase the efficiency of the procedure by using bacterial strains adapted to grow on these waste products.

An allied project being conducted by the same researcher is under way to construct a small scale "digester" for home use. The purpose of this investigation is to return to the home some percentage of the energy investment represented by waste food and other products, excluding sewage.

Also in the Department of Microbiology, research is under way to utilize water hyacinths as a source of methane gas.

The researcher contends that this vegetation can be fermented anaerobically and made to release a bio-gas containing a high percentage of methane.

Results are expected to produce alcohol and various organic acids. The work, according to researchers, may result in a new biological system for converting cellulosic material to fuels and various organic chemicals.

USM's Department of Chemistry, working under a Department of Energy (DOE) grant, is attempting to produce alcohol by new, non-routine chemical synthesis techniques. The researchers are seeking an alternate method of producing ethyl alcohol from biomass for fuel uses.

The fermentation method of producing ethyl alcohol has received considerable attention because it uses renewable biological resources of "biomass." But, fermentation is a relatively time-consuming process that requires multiple energy-consuming distillations.

The researchers believe that ethyl alcohol can be produced easier utilizing a fermentation conversion of three different but related chemicals which, as shown in prior research, have produced alcohol in varying amounts.

All three of the chemicals are made from a parent chemical called "furfural," which can be made from biomass sources such as pine forest wastes, corn cobs, and rice and oat hulls.

At present, the process of producing alcohol from furfural is an expensive procedure that uses lithium metal dissolved in amine — an organic compound of nitrogen that may be considered an ammonia derivative.

The researchers are trying to make this process more economical and attractive to industry by developing a cheaper conversion process which may even utilize nuclear power plant waste.

In simplest terms, the ultimate goal of this research is to show that furfural produced from forest and agricultural waste materials can be appropriately treated with a radiation source derived from nuclear waste and yield ethyl alcohol.

SOLAR ENERGY
It is estimated that every acre of land in the state annually receives the solar energy equivalent of more than $300,000 worth of electrical energy at current rates.

Despite the vast potential of energy from the sun, the best devices now available for converting solar radiation to either heat or electricity are extremely inefficient, according to investigators at USM's Department of Chemistry.

A DOE-funded project at USM is seeking to produce an improved photovoltaic cell since conversion of solar radiation to electrical energy can be accomplished when such cells use "high quality" photons in the visible part of the sun's radiation. Visible light has more energy potential than light in the infrared, or invisible, portion. Consequently the use of visible light can be — in principle — more efficiently used.

The researchers have two primary objectives: to achieve a fundamental understanding of the complex chemical reactions occurring in the cell, and to apply lessons learned in this fundamental research on cell chemistry towards rational design of more efficient cells. This type of solar energy use has been described as "active."

A second method currently under study by both Mississippi State University and Mississippi Power and Light Company is known as "Passive."

The MSU Solar Energy Laboratory is housed in a pre-engineered metal building. The south wall of the building contains solar air heaters which use the outer building's shell as the major component of the solar collectors.

Ten cubic yards of egg-sized gravel act as a heat storage reservoir to heat the building at night and during cloudy weather. Tests have been conducted in the building to simulate use of solar energy in heating a poultry broiler house and later plans are to simulate heating residences.

Mississippi Power and Light Company has completed design of a "passive solar" home which will utilize the sun without special equipment. For example, most of the windows in a passive solar home would have a southern exposure, allowing solar heat to enter the home for most of the day during winter months.

In another solar project, which involves the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, DOE, and MP&L, research personnel are monitoring the efficiency of solar heating and water heating systems installed at MP&L's Clinton center.

parently left his motel room to go have a cup of coffee and said he specifically left the curtains open in his room so anybody who would go near the room could see the dog.

"The maid went into the room and apparently frightened the dog. The animal's protective instincts apparently caused him to attack," the patrolman stated.

"The woman suffered multiple lacerations of the right forearm," the patrolman noted.

James said after the dog mauled the woman the animal ran to the nearby Chocktaw Shopping Center where an unidentified man saw the primarily white-colored dog with what appeared to be blood on his neck and back.

"When the man saw the blood he thought the dog was hurt and called the police," James said.

"Meanwhile, motel owner Milford Lady's son Jim Lady had followed the dog and returned to tell me of the animal's location," the patrolman reported.

James apprehended the dog and confined the animal on the back seat of his patrol car until Massey was taken by Mobile Medic to the Hancock General emergency room.

"Shelter said he would remain in the Hancock County area for 10 days and keep the dog under close observation," he added.

James said no charges were filed in the incident.

VIDEO MAGAZINE

Rebroadcasts of popular programs from the "Studio See" series can be seen at 1:30 p.m., Saturdays on the Mississippi ETV Network. The weekly video magazine for family viewers includes such features as a behind-the-scenes look at television violence, the response of a New England community to juvenile delinquency problems and an ecology trip down the Hudson River on board folk singer Pete Seeger's sloop, the Clearwater. The programs offer no consistent "star" or program "host" but focus attention on the real kids who are the subjects of the feature stories. From Europe to the Cayman Islands to locations across the United States, the traveling "Studio See" production teams have faced a variety of bizarre challenges: the reenactment of a freeway car accident handled by a teenage motor assist patrol; the wilderness round-up of wild mustangs in Colorado; and the frenzied blackhouse action at the launch of a young astrophysicist's missile experiment. The programs that will be rebroadcast were first seen on ETV in 1978.

OCCUPATIONAL DISEASE

"Song of the Canary," a documentary about deadly health hazards in the American work place, can be seen at 10 p.m., Monday, on the Mississippi Educational Television Network. The program takes its name from the song birds coal miners carry into shafts to warn them of deadly methane gas. When a bird dies, the miners know danger is near. The U.S. government estimates that 100,000 American workers fall victim to occupational diseases each year.

"Song of the Canary" closely examines two clear cases of disease - pesticide workers sterilized by working exposure to DBCP in California and retired mill workers organizing against brown-lung disease (byssinosis) in North and South Carolina.

FUTURES EXPLORED

"Farmweek" host John Winfield introduces the first of a five-part series on the futures market on "Farmweek" at 7:30 p.m., Monday, on the Mississippi Educational Television Network. The program will be rebroadcast the following morning at 7:30.

Winfield describes ways to use the futures market and how to make wise decisions. He explains how to establish a marketing objective and how to start a market program. Included in the five-part series will be interviews with specialists in the futures field.

"Farmweek" is a co-production of the Mississippi Center for Educational Television and the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service.

Hancock Grand Jury selection set Monday

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

A manslaughter trial and arraignment of three persons indicted by the October Hancock County Grand Jury in connection with repair work at a local school are included in the docket of the January term of Hancock Circuit Court which opens Monday.

Also Monday, a new Grand Jury is slated to be chosen from among some 300 persons summoned for jury duty during the term, according to Circuit Clerk Henry Otis.

The three-week term will begin at 10 a.m. Monday in the Courthouse in Bay St. Louis.

Otis reported Friday, "Place One Circuit Judge Leslie B. Grant will preside over this term."

The court's criminal docket lists a Jan. 20 trial for Holly Jean Wilson of Bay St. Louis who is charged with manslaughter in the Sept. 26 shooting death of Charles Cox at his residence in the Wheel Inn Trailer Court in Bay St. Louis.

Cox was an employee of the Bay St. Louis Water Department.

Local contractor and businessman Ray (Bob) Rippitoe will be arraigned on false pretense charges stemming from an investigation of repair work at Gulfview Elementary School.

Rippitoe is president of Bay Contractors of Diamondhead, a company hired by the school district to perform repairs at the school after a May 19 tornado damaged the facility.

Former District One Hancock County School Board member Oris Ladner will be arraigned on conflict of interest charges, also a result of the Gulfview investigation.

Newly elected County Election Commissioner John V. Ladner will be arraigned on a forgery charge, also stemming from the Gulfview investigation.

A total of 142 criminal and 1,293 civil cases are listed on the two dockets. Otis said the Grand Jury selected this week will serve until July.

"In addition to the Grand Jury, a petit jury will be selected each week of the term," Otis noted.

Condominiums planned at old hotel on Bay

The former Pines Hill hotel located on the north shore of Bay St. Louis has been sold to Southern Scottish Inns, Inc. of New Orleans by the religious order of The Oblates of Mary Immaculate.

Harry Gellar, president of Gellar Investments, Inc. of Ocean Springs who managed the sale, said the Southern Scottish Inns is a "up and coming" franchise operation owning 57 motels throughout the country.

He did not disclose the sale price.

Gellar said his company recently sold the Buena Vista Hotel in Biloxi for Southern Scottish Inns before making this transaction.

Plans for the 70 acre site include adding 200 town houses and converting the former hotel into 70 condominiums, Gellar said.

Construction is scheduled to begin in six months, Gellar said.

He stated the beach and marina will be restored with a swimming pool and tennis courts to be added.

A golf course near the hotel will not be restored because it is not on the property purchased, he said.

Pine Hills was constructed in the early 1920s by a group of New Orleans businessmen and northern industrialists who built a golf course and later decided to build the hotel.

Construction began in 1923. A symbol of a prosperous America, the building was constructed with no costs spared. Cement and wire stucco were used to make the building totally fire proof.

The solid construction later proved the building hurricane-proof after Camille passed directly over the building in 1969.

The stock market crash in 1929 and the construction of the US-90 bridge in Bay St. Louis are considered major reasons for the hotel's rapid decline.

After many years of vacancy the building was purchased by the Oblate Fathers in 1953 and restored to its former beauty. All went well until the Vatican II changed the concept of seminaries to include becoming more active in associations with the people.

The Oblates closed and moved their seminaries from the quiet woods on the edge of Bay St. Louis to Creighton University in Omaha, Neb. in 1968. The building has been deserted since that date.

St. Stanislaus head football coach resigns

By WAYNE DUCOMB JR.

Head Football Coach Barry Jones of St. Stanislaus High School in Bay St. Louis has resigned his position and joined the sales force of a Gulfport car dealership.

SSC officials recently spoke with J.E. Loicano, owner of Loicano's Health Club in Bay St. Louis, about the now open position, but the former Mississippi State University, Gulfport East High School and Bay High School coach said Friday he is not interested in the position.

Loicano stated, "I spoke to the brothers at Stanislaus, but I don't think I will take the position."

Stanislaus Athletic Director Brother Lewis Joseph, SC, was unavailable for comment Friday, but sources report Mike Meyers, SSC graduate and coach at Broadmoor High School in Baton Rouge, La., is a prime candidate for the position.

Jones said Friday in Gulfport, "This was strictly a financial decision."

"I had reached a point where I realized I couldn't make a comfortable living in the coaching profession," he explained.

The former head coach said he informed St. Stanislaus officials in mid-December of his intentions to leave the coaching profession and began working with Bubba Oustalet Lincoln-Mercury, Inc. on Dec. 29.

Jones reported Bubba Oustalet Ford-Subaru, Inc. of Gulfport recently bought Royal Lincoln-Mercury, Inc. also of Gulfport.

"This was the best decision for my family and I to make this change. I had to place my family before anything else," Jones said.

"I had no problems with the people at St. Stanislaus. In fact, that would be the only place I would want to coach if I returned to that profession," he stated.

Although Jones' contract extends to the end of the 1980-1981 school year he said "by mutual consent" with SSC officials he terminated employment with the school.

"The brothers at Stanislaus were in full agreement with my decision. If I had waited until the end of this school year the opportunity to work with Bubba Oustalet would have no longer been available," Jones explained.

BARRY JONES

"I had the opportunity to step into a beginning organization with people who have 30 experience in the automobile business," he added.

"The people at St. Stanislaus were very considerate. It has been an enjoyable experience working at Stanislaus and something I'll always remember," Jones said.

"There hasn't been any disagreement and I only have the highest regards for the brothers at Stanislaus. This was a personal matter I decided so I could make more money for my family," Jones stated.

"You reach a point in the coaching profession where you can't support a family," he decided.

Jones is now a sales representative at the Gulfport dealership located at 2200 15th St.

He had been head coach at SSC for the last 18 months.

Previously, Jones was head football coach for two years at Harrison Central High School, athletic director for Huguenot High School in Richmond, Va. for one year, head football and track coach at Stanislaus for four years, assistant football and head track coach at SSC for three years and football coach at Cherokee High School in Compton, Ga.

The SSC football team earned a 7-3-1 record this past season and were countywide champions.

water heater, washing machine, cabinets, stove, food and dishes were completely destroyed," Lizana reported.

"When our firefighters arrived they saw smoke rolling from the roof of the house. They extinguished the blaze in a matter of minutes," he stated.

"Our firefighters did a tremendous job extinguishing this dangerous fire," Lizana added.

Also responding to the blaze were the Bay Police Department, Waveland's Fire Department, and the Hancock County Chapter—American Red Cross' emergency support unit.

Regarding the US-90 accident, Karl reported, "Ruth B. Stafford, 55, of Hibihi Street in Diamondhead was driving her compact station wagon south on Longfellow Street when she collided with an automobile driven by Marla Carter, 17, of 417 Wainwright St. in Waveland."

"The Carter vehicle was travelling west on US-90 at the time of the accident," the investigator noted.

"Stafford was cited with failure to yield the right-of-way and causing damage," he stated.

Karl said the woman's husband Lester Stafford was a passenger in the station wagon at the time of the accident.

The investigator reported Barbara Gillum, 16, of 714 Shieldsborough Drive was a passenger in the Carter vehicle along with Leanne Adams, 16, of 148 Waveland Ave., and Sheryl Espinoza, 16, of 108 Lakeside Drive also of Waveland.

Karl said Gillum was apparently the only person injured in the accident.

The girl was transported by Mobile Medic to Hancock General.

The Gillum youth, a high-scoring member of the Bay High girl's basketball team, had been scheduled to participate in a Bay High-Vanceave game Friday night.

The investigator added, "We got the accident call through the Waveland Police Department's citizen band receiver and they notified us."

Also responding to the accident were Bay Patrolmen Peter Marchetta, Russell Watts and Gordon Campbell; State Highway Patrolmen Earl Cox and Curtis Newman; Charles Pernicaro Wrecker Service; and Mobile Medic Registered Emergency Medical Technicians Cliff Parker and Paul Kinney.

Day, which has been proclaimed by Governor William Winter for Jan. 17.

Highlighting the day will be an address by U.S. Secretary of State Ed Muskie.

Jan. 17 is the 200th anniversary of the Battle of Cowpens in South Carolina, an event which marked the last major battle of the war.

Kosciuszko designed fortifications for the Cowpens battle.

Kosciuszko, the city, with only a few citizens of Polish descent, took its name at the insistence of William Dodd, the first legislative representative from the area. Dodd's father had served in the Revolution and had come home with praise for the Polish military engineer.

Zimmerman said the bids could possibly be negotiated with the project engineer, Louis Eaton Partnership of Jackson, to meet the requirements.

Tully said he was authorized last October to repair the Civic Center roof on an emergency basis through a verbal agreement with Waveland Superintendent and Alderman Herman Yarborough.

The Long Beach contractor said he experienced shipping delays in obtaining specialized materials necessary for the repairs.

City Clerk and Alderman Barbara Rappold told Tully, "I was assured by your office work would start the last weekend in October."

Longo said the board's original emergency authorization of Tully's firm to undertake the project was too long ago to still be handled as an emergency.

In addition, Longo said he was not inclined to act Tuesday on Tully's offer to sell the materials to the city since Yarborough was absent from the meeting.

Tully said special materials are necessary to repair the roof because a previous repair job was completed with "bad materials" meant to be used on trailers, not on a foam roof.

City Attorney Lucien Gex advised the board the Civic Center roof could no longer legally be repaired on an emergency basis without advertising for bids on the project.

Also Tuesday, Longo told representatives of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce in a discussion of the current wastewater issue, "Sewerage treatment is a science in its infancy—an experimental science."

The mayor expressed those sentiments in connection with his consternation over dictates from state and federal officials that Bay St. Louis, Waveland and Hancock County must join a tri-county regional sewerage system or forfeit federal funding.

Longo, Mayor Larry Bennett of Bay St. Louis and Hancock County Board of Supervisors President A. A. Kellar, all members of the Waveland Wastewater Authority, met with the chamber group to discuss the issue at a 6 p.m. unannounced session which preceded the aldermen's 7:30 p.m. gathering.

Cable tv firm promotes Jacob

Neville R. (Jake) Jacob of Bay St. Louis, general manager and vice president of Hancock Community Cable (tv), Inc., has been named operations manager in Mississippi and Florida for Lamar Cablesystems Inc. and Lamar Cablepartners, Inc. of Jackson. Albert Lamar, president of Lamar Communications, Inc. in Jackson, said Jacob will retain his present position and will maintain offices at Hancock Cable's location in Waveland as well as at corporate headquarters in Jackson.

In his new capacity, Jacob will be responsible for the overall operations of the group's systems throughout Mississippi and Florida, as well as the development and management of a new 'in house' training facility planned at the Waveland location.

"Our continued expansion has made it necessary to create this position. Jacob was chosen for the task based on his continued dedication to both the cable industry and the company through the difficult period of formation and becoming operational," Lamar said.

"In his new capacity he will report directly to Terrell H. Adams, executive vice president of the Lamar Cable operations and president of Lamar Outdoor Advertising, Inc., the parent organization," Lamar added.

Lamar, who also serves as chairman of the board of Lamar Outdoor Advertising, said the cable group also has operational systems in Apalachicola and Havana, Fla., and is currently building in Hazelhurst and Crystal Springs.

"Additionally, our construction schedule calls for the building of two more cable units, one each in Mississippi and Florida before summer," the executive continued.

Jacob lives with his wife, Evelyn, and their family at 498 Felicity Street.

OLG Nuptial Mass unites Ederer, Hille

Our Lady of the Gulf Catholic Church formed the setting for the December 27 exchange of vows between Helene Stephanie Hille of Bay St. Louis and Mark Robert Ederer of Ocean Springs.

The bride's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Frank Alfred Hille of Bay St. Louis. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Ederer of Ocean Springs.

Brother Albert Guarino, SC celebrated a Nuptial Mass at noon uniting the couple. Altar boys were James and Todd Thriffley of Bay St. Louis; sons of Mr. and Mrs. James Thriffley III. White poinsettias and lighted brass candelabrum adorned the altar. In the background, two large Christmas trees were decorated with gold velvet ribbon bows.

Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. John McKenna of Bay St. Louis, organist; Robin Tisdale of Hammond, La., soloist; and Jerry Palisia, also of Hammond on trumpet.

Scripture readings were rendered by Michael Ederer of Independence, Mo., brother of the groom; and Charlotte Gordon of New Orleans and Bay St. Louis.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a formal gown of pure silk ivory peau de soie, previously worn by her mother on her wedding day. It was fashioned with princess lines featuring a fitted bodice with softly rounded neckline bordered with embossed appliques of venise lace embellished with seed pearls. Appliques of identical lace adorned the bell shaped skirt which extended into a cathedral length train. A Juliet cap of peau de soie trimmed in venise lace and seed pearls held a long veil of imported English illusion. She carried a pear shaped bouquet of vanda orchids, ivory and flesh hued roses, ivory bell flowers and baby's breath interspersed with ivory moire ribbon.

Charlotte Gordon attended the bride as maid of honor.

Bridesmaids were Karen Sharp of Folsom, La., Laura Ederer and Elizabeth Ederer of New Orleans, sisters of the groom; Carla Hille of Bay St. Louis, sister of the bride; and Mary Ann Ederer of Ocean Springs, sister of the groom.

Miss Suzanne Hille of Bay St. Louis, sister of the bride, was junior bridesmaid.

Attendants were identically attired in formal gowns of mallard blue panne' velvet fashioned with criss-cross bodice, shirred shoulders and Grecian draped back. Their full skirts fell in soft gathers from fitted waists.

They wore hair ornaments of ivory gardenias and baby's breath and carried crescent shaped bouquets of ivory gardenias, blue forget-me-nots and baby's breath with ivory velvet ribbon streamers.

Miss Rachael Grumme of Gretna, La., niece of the groom, was flower girl.

Michael Ederer served his brother as best man.

Groomsmen were Bill Gryder, Colin Green and Shawn Fountain of Ocean Springs; Roger Applewhite of Gautier and Craig Fountain of Los Angeles, Ca.

Ushers were George Johnson of New Orleans, great-uncle of the bride; and Cmdr. Ronald Grumme U.S.N. of Gretna, La., brother-in-law of the groom.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the Bay-Waveland Yacht Club.

The bride's table was overlaid with an ivory chiffon cloth and held a three-tiered wedding cake topped with blue and white silk flowers. Christmas trees adorned with red ornaments and plaid bows decorated the club. The mantel was decked with spruce and pine cones with red ornaments and similar decorations were used throughout.

Julie Martinovich of Bay St. Louis attended the guest register and Kathy Sharp of Folsom, La. the cake table.

The mother of the bride chose for the occasion a formal gown of mauve georgette, featuring a softly draped bodice and tulip skirt with matching accessories. A corsage of pale green cymbidium orchids completed her ensemble.

The groom's mother was attired in a formal gown of Tavengar chiffon. She wore a white orchid corsage.

Mrs. Ben Hille Sr., grandmother of the bride wore a turquoise dress with a yellow camellia corsage. The groom's grandmother wore a beige dress with a bronze camellia corsage.

For traveling to Walt Disney World, Tampa, Key West and Miami, Fla. the bride wore a bone wool suit accented with light blue blouse and bone accessories. A corsage of vanda orchids, light blue miniature carnations and ivory picou satin ribbon completed her ensemble.

The couple will reside in Ocean Springs.

Out-of-town guests included the bride's great-aunts and uncles, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Margavio, Mr. and Mrs. George Johnson and Mrs. Peter Prestia. Several of the bride's second and third cousins from New Orleans, Mrs. Frank Lombard, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Fox and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Margavio, and Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Jones. Similar arrangements adorned the food table and a large flocked Christmas tree was positioned at the room's entrance.

Assisting at the reception were Jean Easley and Annie Ruth Easley of Shreveport, La., aunts of the bride.

The bride's mother chose for the occasion a long sleeved gown of jade green chiffon featuring a tucked bodice.

The mother of the groom was attired in a mauve accordian pleated gown with fitted waistline.

State's vocational rehab services aid 64 in Hancock

Some 6,400 Mississippians, including 64 from Hancock County, more than doubled their previous incomes after receiving services from the Division of Vocational Rehabilitation of the State Department of Education.

Dr. Charles Holladay, state superintendent of education, said salaries of the 6,430 persons grew from $13.7 million a year before rehabilitation to $38.4 million a year after rehabilitation.

Rehab considers a person rehabilitated when he or she is placed on a job and has successfully adjusted to it. The 64 in Hancock County were rehabilitated from among some 325 people served here by the division during fiscal 1980.

VR is a state-federal service provided by law to help disabled men and women earn a living. It eliminates or reduces disabilities, where possible, and prepares working-aged handicapped persons for earning a living. It also helps them find work and adjust to it.

The program is open to persons with physical, mental or emotional disabilities which are substantial hindrances to their earning a living. There must also be the likelihood that, as a result of the services, these persons will have the ability to work improved.

"A total of 25,523 persons received our services last year," said John Webb, assistant superintendent of education and VR director. "These services included counseling, evaluation of needs, medical help, physical aids, job training and placement, and follow-up after placement."

Of the 6,430 successfully rehabilitated 3,192 or 49.6 percent, were severely disabled. The largest number of disabilities were orthopedic (amputations or physical impairments) - almost 1,400. Ranking second, with over 1,200 cases, were mental and emotional disorders. These were followed by some 900 digestive system problems. These figures were included in rehab's annual report, released recently.

The report noted that VR administers a statewide system of "sheltered" workshop facilities, which hire and train the handicapped.

These facilities earned almost $2.7 million in sub-contract work for industries statewide last year. Over $1.5 million was paid in trainee wages.

Among other services, VR also administers a Disability Determination Services unit. The unit, under a contract with the Social Security Administration, helps determine who is eligible for disability benefits.

Last year, the unit processed over 63,000 claims, approving about one in four.

PUBLIC NOTICE

BEACH BOULEVARD HISTORIC DISTRICT

Certain properties in Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, were, on November 25, 1980, entered in the National Register of Historic Places, the federal government's list of historic buildings and other cultural resources worthy of preservation. Properties listed lie within the Beach Boulevard Historic District, an irregularly shaped area of some 175 acres roughly in the shape of a crescent lying within the boundaries of Bay St. Louis along and to the west of Beach Boulevard and including a large part of the city.

Listing in the National Register makes property owners eligible to be considered for federal grants-in-aid for historic preservation and provides limited protection through comment by the President's Advisory Council on Historic Preservation on the effect of federally financed, assisted, or licensed undertakings on historic properties.

If a depreciable property is listed in the National Register, it may be affected by certain provisions of the Tax Reform Act of 1976, Section 2124 of which encourages preservation of historic depreciable structures by allowing favorable tax treatments for rehabilitations while discouraging destruction of historic buildings by eliminating certain otherwise-available federal tax benefits both for demolition of historic structures and for new construction on sites of demolished historic buildings.

If a property containing coal resources is listed in the National Register, certain provisions of the Surface Mining and Control Act of 1977 make it less likely that surface mining of coal will be permitted by the state or federal government.

The Beach Boulevard Historic District is a part of a larger Multiple Resources of Bay St. Louis nomination. Owners of properties included in the Multiple Resources of Bay St. Louis nomination but outside the Beach Boulevard Historic District have been sent by mail a notice similar to the foregoing notice.

A copy of the nomination, along with criteria under which these properties were evaluated for nomination, is on file at the Hancock County Library, 812 Highway 90, Bay St. Louis, Mississippi, and is available for public inspection during regular library hours.

Coast Episcopal accredited by Southern Association

A special reception was held in the Mississippi Suite of the Hilton Hotel in New Orleans where certification of accreditation was awarded to Coast Episcopal High in Pass Christian during the annual meeting of Southern Association of Colleges and Schools.

Mississippi is the only state that requires each state accredited school to go through a self-study and be evaluated by a visiting team.

Over 200 schools are involved this year in one phase or other of the evaluation process.

Great gains are noted in improving physical facilities of the schools; creating a cooperative team effort of the total school staff; focusing on areas that need improvement; and setting up priorities and initiating plans to accomplish them.

Perhaps the most valuable accomplishment is the "live," in-service training brought about by the interchange between community leaders, parents, staff members, visiting college personnel, superintendents, principals, and master teachers.

The presentation of certificates was made by Wallace W. Merrill, executive secretary of the Mississippi Secondary Association, and Msgr. Paul V. Canonici, Superintendent of Mississippi Catholic Schools, Natchez-Jackson Diocese.

The certificates for Coast Episcopal High was accepted by Linda McCulloch.

The Commission of Secondary Schools accredits individual public and private schools and middle schools. Accreditation symbolizes confidence in a school's purpose, resources and performance in meeting the commission's standards of quality. The commission on secondary schools is one of the four components of the South's recognized regional, independent accrediting organizations.

SACS covers the geographic area from Virginia to Texas and is composed of public and private universities, colleges, occupational institutions, secondary and elementary schools with overseas jurisdiction in Latin America. Its total of member and affiliated institutions is approximately 10,000.

Accreditation is awarded by the commission on secondary schools only after an extensive self-study and further evaluation by a visiting team of qualified professionals.

State secondary committees, arms of the Commission in the field, conduct the actual work of accreditation.

Self-study is an in-depth examination by staff and the lay public interested in secondary school improvement and covering such areas as purposes, instructional program, personnel, facilities, school-community interaction, and coordination of effort.

Visiting committees review self-studies and may make additional improvement recommendations.

Once granted, accreditation must be earned continually by annual reports; there is a first year interim review to check the progress made since 10 year evaluation, an interim review is held every five years with the self-study process repeated every ten years.

Faulkner documentary takes top public broadcast award

The Corporation for Public Broadcasting (CPB) has given its annual award for the best cultural documentary of the year to Mississippi ETV's "William Faulkner: A Life on Paper."

Two hundred thirty-five programs from 80 public television stations were entered in nine program categories. Seven Awards were presented and five honorable mentions were named.

Judges praised the Faulkner production, calling it "a creative, well-researched piece, a definitive and satisfying portrait, a permanent public television document."

The program, narrated by Raymond Burr, takes a look at the celebrated author through filmed excerpts of his works, interviews with people who were close to him and detailed accounts of his life and eccentricities.

"William Faulkner: A Life on Paper" debuted on the Public Broadcasting Service (PBS) in 1979 and is continuing to amass awards and recognition. It has received the Gold Award by the 1979

International Film and TV Festival of New York, a Gold Plaque from the 1979 Chicago International Film Festival, a Silver Award from the 1979 Houston International Film Festival and a 1980 Ohio State Award from Ohio State University.

It also is a finalist in this year's Alfred I. duPont-Columbia University awards competition.

The program has been shown at several academic seminars and also has had an encore presentation on PBS. The CPB award was presented in special ceremonies Jan. 7 in Houston during PBS's annual convention. Another Mississippi ETV production, "The White Channel," was given an honorable mention.

A printed version of "William Faulkner: A Life on Paper," published by University Press of Mississippi, is available in bookstores or can be ordered directly from University Press of Mississippi, 3825 Ridgewood Road, Jackson, MS 39211, at $10 for hardback, $5 for paperback, plus sales tax.

There's an Answer!

by Norman Vincent Peale
and Ruth Stafford Peale

Through the mud

Q: Our 23-year-old son started drinking and smoking pot in high school. He is into trouble all the time, has been arrested for drunken driving, is constantly getting in fights, breaking bones, getting violent, threatening his wife and sister.

While we were on vacation he broke into our home, drank all my husband's booze, boiled food over in my stove and bled all over the basement floor, etc.

He has dragged our good name down and through the mud in this town. I am holding my head up, but it is hard sometimes. Even my prayers don't comfort me much anymore. We all wish he would go far away and leave us alone. Is this wrong?

A: Frequently our young people get their first view of real life and its responsibilities when they go far away from home and are out on their own. Of course, there is the risk of your son's antics continuing, and he should have counseling help with his problems. But there might be more of a chance that he will straighten out and grow up if he goes away. This would force him to make it or break it on his own.

To help you keep on praying and hoping, we are sending you our booklet Try Prayer Power. Anyone wishing a free copy may write to us at Box 500, Pawling, N. Y. 12564.

Won't talk to boys

Q: I am 17 years old and having trouble getting a boyfriend. Every boy I see I won't go up and talk to him. So I usually never see him again. There aren't many nice boys my age. But it seems that every girl my age has a boyfriend.

Sometimes I get impatient and wonder if I'll end up an old maid. But I know if I don't go up and talk to boys, I won't.

DRUG QUIZ

by Curt Scarborough, Ph.D.
Used by permission; all rights reserved by DATE, St. Louis, Mo.

QUESTION - According to a federal report, the percentage of adults who smoke cigarettes is at an all-time low since 1955. Today, just under a third of adults are still smoking. However, while adult males have been kicking the habit in increasing numbers, adult females have not followed suit - and more children and teenagers, boys and girls, are experimenting with cigarettes. How many pre-teenage children are regular smokers?

- a) 1 million
- b) 100,000
- c) 50,000
- d) 5,000

ANSWER - According to the Surgeon General, one hundred thousand children under age 13 are regular smokers. A major public health campaign is now underway to persuade millions of young people never to start smoking in the first place.

Correct answer - b.

QUESTION - What is the relationship between drug use (including alcohol) and sexual performance?

- a) Drugs reduce inhibitions
- b) Drugs increase sensitivity to touch and feeling
- c) Drugs hinder sexual performance
- d) No effect is noticed

ANSWER - Dr. Theodore J. Machler, Jr., a Florida psychiatrist, reports that although drugs are often portrayed as a means to better sexual experience, the fact is they often hinder relationships more than they help them. He says that prolonged drug use often leads to serious deficiencies in sexual relationships, including male impotence and female frigidity. Shakespeare wrote: "It (alcohol) provokes the desire, but it takes away the performance."

Correct answer - c.

For further information about alcohol and drug abuse write Christian Action Commission, P.O. Box 530, Jackson, MS 39205.

maid is what I'll end up being. What should I do?

A: When you are with young people look for a boy who has a big inferiority complex as you have and who is shy like you are. Take the responsibility of making him feel comfortable in a group. You'll lose your shyness the more you get outside yourself. Other young people will like you for it and want to be with you.

SEEMS HOPELESS

Q: My husband wants to dominate me completely. He won't think of letting me get outside the home in other worthwhile activities. He won't even let me have the money from the empty Pepsi bottles.

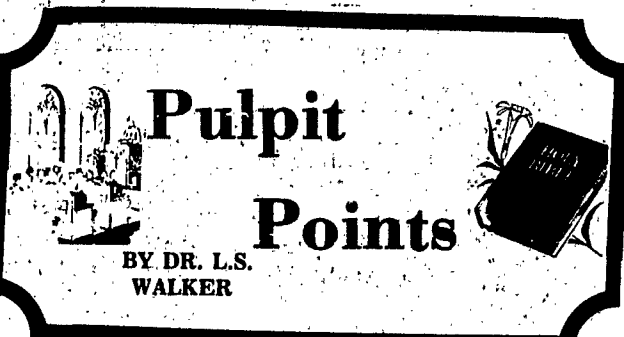

So I sneak around and hide them and sneak them to the grocery store. I can't even buy a birthday gift for my children.

He can think up hundreds of excuses not to spend money if it's something I need or want. Please pray for me. The situation seems hopeless.

A: Your situation is indeed difficult but it's not hopeless. It will take time and patience, but you must show your husband that you are a strong and capable person.

Cultivate a positive attitude about yourself. Become more decisive, less dependent. Assume more leadership in family life. In time your husband may find it easier to share the burden of responsibility, and you two will become a team.

HARMONY IN THE HOME is imperative if there is to be happiness, hope, and health. The home and family unit is the foundation upon which rest the hope of any orderly civilization.

Love, understanding and self-discipline are essentials to the harmony, happiness and good order of a home.

One cantankerous individual member of a family can wreck any hope of harmony and happiness in a home.

Common "nagging" for, example, has sent many a man to destruction and driven some women to despair.

You can nag in language, that human lips have spoken. You also can nag when your lips are tight shut by lifting the eyebrows, tossing the head, or sneering a sneer.

Nagging is not confined to either sex. It is due to disposition and attitudes.

The one who nags injures himself (or herself) and is cruel in the extreme to the one attacked.

A good, old-fashioned quarrel is preferable.

If the continual dropping of water wears away a stone, it is no less true that constant nagging will ruin the best disposition.

If you have a complaint, make it, but don't nag. Nagging is a mark of ignorance, insecurity and immaturity.

Some people are inclined to nag when they are tired; some when they are ill or feel neglected; others, when they themselves are not right; and some because of down-right, old-fashioned meanness.

Sometimes such people are paranoiac and need good professional Christian counseling.

Nagging is a sin against yourself, your household, your husband, your wife, your friends. Why not list it with other sins? That is where it belongs! No Christian can be guilty of nagging and be a true follower of Jesus Christ.

"It is better to dwell in the corner of the housetop (the attic), than with a brawling woman and in a wide (place) house." —Prov. 24:25.

Do you nag others? If you do, you should talk to God about it. It is a very serious and destructive evil.

ETV Brief

MOTHER TERESA

More than three decades ago a tiny Roman Catholic nun forsook the seclusion and security of convent life and went to the streets of India to care for 'the poorest of the poor' - the lonely, the sick, the abandoned and the dying.

Mother Teresa of Calcutta, who has been affectionately dubbed 'the saint of the gutters,' has brought life, love and hope to thousands who had become outcasts of their own society. In 1979 Mother Teresa gained worldwide attention when she was recognized with the Nobel Peace Prize for her selfless deeds.

She is profiled in 'The World of Mother Teresa,' hosted by Joyce Davidson Susskind, at 9 p.m., Monday, on the Mississippi Educational Television Network.

Highlights of the film include segments of a one-on-one conversation between Mother Teresa and Susskind, in which Mother Teresa talks candidly about herself and her work. The segment was produced from a three-hour interview.

"Now the just shall live by faith."
